Hotel Mavens Stanley Turkel, CMHS 2014-09-19
The word "maven" is defined by Wikipedia as a "trusted expert in a particular field, who seeks to pass knowledge on to others." Since the 1980s it has become more common when the New York Times columnist William Safire adapted it to describe himself as "the language maven." The word from Hebrew is mainly confined to American English and was included in the Oxford English Dictionary second edition (1989). My three hotel mavens are: 1) Lucius M. Boomer, one of the most famous hoteliers of his time, was chairman of the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria Corporation. In a career of over half a century, he directed such celebrated hotels as the Bellevue-Stratford in Philadelphia, the Taft in New Haven, the Lenox in Boston, and the McAlpin, Claridge, Sherry-Netherland and the original as well as the current Waldorf-Astoria in New York. 2) George C. Boldt who was the genius of the original Waldorf-Astoria. It was said of him that he made innkeeping a profession and, more than any man, was responsible for the modern American hotel. 3) Oscar of the Waldorf who was described in 1898 by the New York Sun: "In only one New York hotel, however, is there a personage deserving to be called a maître d'hotel. Anyone who studies him closely will soon arrive at a firm conviction that he might quite as appropriately have been called General or Admiral, if circumstances had not led him into the hotel business. Oscar knows everybody." Oscar was a superstar of his time and one of the stalwarts who managed both the original and the current Waldorf-Astoria. Among his many duties, Oscar commanded a staff of 1,000 persons besides conducting a school for waiters, at the time the only one of its kind in the United States. In 1896, Oscar wrote one of the greatest cookbooks of its time: "The Cook Book by 'Oscar of the Waldorf'. It contains 907 pages and 3,455 recipes.

Great American Hoteliers Stanley Turkel
2009-09-16 During the thirty years prior to the Civil War, Americans built hotels larger and more ostentatious than any in the rest of the world. These hotels were inextricably intertwined with American culture and customs but were accessible to average citizens. As Jefferson Williamson wrote in "The American Hotel" (Knopf 1930), hotels were perhaps "the most distinctively American of all our institutions for they were nourished and brought to flower solely in American soil and borrowed practically nothing from abroad". Development of hotels was stimulated by the confluence of travel, tourism and transportation. In 1869, the transcontinental railroad engendered hotels by Henry Flagler, Fred Harvey, George Pullman and Henry Plant. The Lincoln Highway and the Interstate Highway System triggered hotel development by Carl Fisher, Ellsworth Statler, Kemmons Wilson and Howard Johnson. The airplane stimulated Juan Trippe, John Bowman, Conrad Hilton, Ernest Henderson, A.M. Sonnabend and John Hammons.. My research into the lives of these great hoteliers reveals that none of them grew up in the hospitality business but became successful through their intense on-the- job experiences. My investigation has uncovered remarkable and startling true stories about these pioneers, some of whom are well-known and others who are lost in the dustbin of history.

Readings on Managing

Hotels/restaurants/institutions Dunnovan L. Sapienza 1977 Abstract: Theories, principles, techniques and practices from the fields of business management, accounting, personnel, marketing, psychology, sociology and education are used to formulate approaches, systems and analytical tools designed to make food service and lodging organizations more efficient and effective. The readings are a compilation of current and historical viewpoints that reflect concerns of food service and lodging students, instructors or experienced workers, in-service trainees or board members. Key ideas and readings are included for general management, organization, communication, control, human relations, personnel management, professionalism, sales and promotion and industry trends.

Maintenance and Engineering for Lodging and Foodservice Facilities Frank D. Borsenik 1977 Abstract: The total engineering system in lodging and foodservice facilities is dependent on timely and accurate maintenance schedules. The chief engineer must have technical and managerial expertise to keep the operation running. Travelers and guests have created the need for new systems in foodservice and lodging. The role of the engineer/manager relates to the total system cost. The engineer/manager needs basic skills and understanding in blueprint reading. Knowledge of electrical systems, plumbing, electrical systems and appliances, water distribution, swimming pools, heating principles and systems, refrigeration, ventilation and air conditioning, and elevators and escalators is essential. The problems and control of sound and pollution, engineering safety systems and energy conservation are explored. Basic understanding of the total system by the chief engineer provides evidence for problem solutions.
