The Golden Treasury Various 2022-08-10 "The Golden Treasury of English Songs and Lyrics" is a popular anthology of English poetry, originally selected and published by Francis Turner Palgrave in 1861. The book's first edition contained poems by Christopher Marlowe, Thomas Nashe, William Shakespeare, Sir Philip Sidney, Edmund Spenser, The Shepherd Tonie, Joshua Sylvester, John Webster, Sir Thomas Wyatt, and others.

The Place of Poetry Christopher Clausen 2014-07-15 Since the end of the eighteenth century, Christopher Clausen asserts, poetry has steadily declined in cultural status in the English-speaking world, yielding its former place as a bearer of truth to the advancing sciences. As the position of poetry was more and more threatened, its defenders made ever higher claims for its importance, even maintaining for a time that it would take the place of religion. But, though the Romantics brought about a sustained revival of serious poetry for a broad audience, the audience began to dwindle toward the end of the nineteenth century, and the decline accelerated as the twentieth century advanced. Though some of the cultural changes responsible for this retreat were beyond the control of poets -- "a society in which many people find their chief security and sense of meaning through the possession of certain objects will produce great advertising, not great poetry" -- Clausen finds in this situation evidence of an abdication among artists. Because modernist poets and their successors abandoned some indispensable principles, he believes, serious contemporary poetry now has virtually no audience outside of English departments. Yet the need for poetry "is not less in an era like ours," and "the opportunities that the end of the twentieth century offers to poetry will not become fully apparent unless and until poets take advantage of them."

The Book of Love Andrew M. Greeley 2008-01-02
Love. Of all the virtues that have been passed on to us through the ages, from the great poets to the saints and scholars, throughout history and literature, love is the one virtue that we as a society cannot live without. The ability to love well and to love wisely is the most important trait that parents can pass on to their children. As children grow, the longing to share this love as well as receive it will remain strong throughout their lives. Bestselling author Andrew M. Greeley and his sister, Dr. Mary G. Durkin have compiled a beautiful and inspiring anthology that will help us comprehend this the most important of virtues and also help us express and understand what it means to love, and how to love wisely. The Book of Love is a perfect gift for a parent to give to a child, for relatives or friends to share, or for those who are coming to know this virtue in all its glory. People of all nations, creeds, colors, and denominations will appreciate this treasury of essays, poems, stories, and songs reflecting the one human need that has remained constant: Love. It has been written about in the Bible, and it was passed down orally in myth and legend. It was discussed by the Chinese philosopher Confucius and in the Koran, and it inspired great works of literature and the pages of popular fiction. The Book of Love is a testament to the enduring nature of our own good, a good expressed through the human bond. In the tradition of William J. Bennett's The Book of Virtue, The Book of Love is a collection to be treasured, and shared, but most of all, it will guide us to express and to pass on the greatest of life's virtues: Love. Last Deception Of Palliser Wentwood Imogen De La Bere 2011-06-30 Palliser Wentwood, dangerously charming, has run away to England, leaving his farm in New Zealand, his beautiful wife Salome, his daughters, and his many creditors. Palliser is in search of a fortune, enough to restore the prosperity of farm and family. In Thule Hall, Herts, live the Lovelaces - Hubert and Blanche, brother and sister -both amazingly tall and immensely fat, shy and gothically retired. Engaged as butler, and posing as a grieving widower, Palliser turns his charms on Blanche, teasing out laughter and beauty where before there was only timidity. But will his deception succeed? Can he bring himself to ruin her? Or will Salome succumb to the gentle siege of Philip Butterworth, solicitor and suitor? An exceptional first novel, wise and funny and sad in equal measure, and peopled by a cast of characters as singular as they are delightful. The Orient in Chaucer and Medieval Romance Carol Falvo Heffernan 2003 A study of romance and the Orient in Chaucer and in anonymous popular metrical romances. The idea of the Orient is a major motif in Chaucer and medieval romance, and this new study reveals much about its use and significance, setting the literature in its historical context and thereby offering fresh new readings of a number of texts. The author begins by looking at Chaucer's and Gower's treatment of the legend of Constance, as told by the Man of Law, demonstrating that Chaucer's addition of a pattern of mercantile details highlights the commercial context of the eastern Mediterranean in which the heroine is placed; she goes on to show how Chaucer's portraits of Cleopatra and Dido from the Legend of Good Women, read against parallel texts, especially in Boccaccio, reveal them to be loci of medieval orientalism. She then examines Chaucer's inventive handling of details taken from Eastern sources and analogues in the Squire's Tale, showing how he shapes them into the western form of interlace. The author concludes by looking at two romances, Floris and Blanchefleur and Le Bone Florence of Rome; she argues that elements in Floris of sibling incest are legitimised into a quest for the beloved, and demonstrates that Le Bone Florence be related to analogous oriental tales about heroic women who remain steadfast in virtue against persecution and adversity. Professor CAROL F. HEFFERNAN teaches in the Department of English, Rutgers University.

Poetry of Yesterday a Treasury of Religious and Inspirational Poetry Ruth Kuehmichel

2011-08-01 I was born to Alfred and Lena Mandel on July 1, 1928. My parents owned a Stoney Creek Cheese Factory that we lived above. I grew up in the country 3 miles from the small town of Loyal, Wisconsin. I went to a one room country school with 36 others, grades 1-8. My mother and older sister both worked in the factory, while I cared for four siblings younger than me. We were brought up in a loving home; bible studies every week. We were taught to love one another, love God, respect our elders, being kind to one another. We all worked hard and long. My oldest sister and I have had a double wedding. We moved to Marshfield, Wisconsin area when married, and lived there. I had a family of twelve children, nine sons in a row, then three daughters. In 1959 we built out new home and moved four mile west of Marshfield. The last six of my children were born there. The bible studies continued weekly. My children grew up knowing and loving God. My love for God has been brought out in my poems. God is our rock of salvation; our hope, our strength in every time of need. We only need to go to Him in prayer. I was widowed in January 1983, with three young children still at home. I started writing poems and songs; the first poem published in 1985 with my picture and biography. My second poem is an all religious book of poems. In 1983 I became a domestic engineer providing rhyme time. The Lord told me to write the Bible as a poem, making it easier to read and remember. My second book is being published soon. Our Father God is gracious. Abiding in Jesus, Ruth Mandel Kuehmichel

Riveting Romantic Love Treasury Roy E Peterson 2020-08-31 My poetry is meant to touch the hearts of every man and woman regardless of their station in life. They reflect my ability to operate at any level of sophistication. Proof is in the number of my poems now published by the Society of Classical Poets, as well as shared online and in specialized collections such as Western Writers and my college poetry annual. Great artists like great poets do not unnecessarily aspire to greatness, but rather to elucidation of that which fascinates them to their own satisfaction. To be sure they are on a great quest to unlock secrets, detail events, resolve inconsistencies, further knowledge, and explore the eternal, whether that be in this world or the next. They wish to share their insights, visions, and beauty with everyone through their chosen medium of expression. What makes paintings great, humor funny and contagious, and poetry meaningful? They all appeal to the senses of the common man, or woman; are enjoyed, because they engage the mind with their creativity; and thrill with how they elicit a viscerally exciting response within the heart. Cumbersome constructs that obfuscate these reactive pleasures of the senses, mind and heart with vagueness in a picture, or portrait; comical thoughts that are humorous only to a few; and indecipherable use of language in a poem may be judged great by the social snobs, those aspiring to demonstrate their erudition, and those who consider themselves superior in their interpretation of art for the masses, but fail to inspire the rest of the world seeking beautiful simplicity. I, for one, have never been inspired by modern art with its amorphous forms. I would never hang a chaotic Picasso on any wall in my home, nor most of the junk foisted upon us in the twentieth and twenty first centuries. The timeless humor of Mark Twain while hearkening back to another era, triggers a feeling of common cause and common virtue central to the morality and culture of every era. The simple similitudes and comparisons that elicited laughter by the humorist Will Rogers endure over the decades. Even Benjamin Franklin's tongue in cheek writings echo through the centuries. I enjoy the simple humor of an Ogden Nash or a Doctor Seuss; thrill to the dark and mournful tones of an Edgar Alan Poe; love the clear descriptions of a Henry Wadsworth Longfellow; and relax with the poems of a Robert Frost expositing and detailing simple life and simple values using simple country common terms and themes. I believe my poetry is educational, humorous, historically accurate, mythologically sensitive, romantic, inveighs against social and cultural degradation, and smashes untenable political concepts and icons. Although I could write doggerel at the bottom of the scale, modern monologue poetry without rhyme, or poetry of the highest linguistic order, I choose to write for all levels of taste, from the blue collar worker and family to the highest levels of society and academia. I purposely write so that every reader can understand my thought process, my realities, my fantasies, and my humor simply and comfortably reading or listening for themselves and feeling the heartfelt words which I hope to imbue with passion and perspective. Ultimately every reader is the judge of the value of the poetry and the poet. Each will find their own comfort level, comprehension of the poet's intent in writing the poem, and depth of feeling that the poems engender. Thus I leave it in your hands, mind, and heart.

English Poetry and Prose of the Romantic Movement George Benjamin Woods 1916 This book presents an extensive compilation of all of the most important works of English Romantic literature. Virtually every important Romantic writer is covered, including William Blake, Robert Burns, Lord Byron and many, many more.

Treasury of Chinese Love Poems Xiaolong Qiu 2003 Qiu Xiaolong is extravagantly qualified for translating these poems, having as a citizen of China won prizes for his own poetry and for translating T.S. Eliot and other English and American poets into Chinese and, more recently, as a citizen of the United States, won prizes for his own poetry and fiction in English. To my mind, the Changgan Song in this collection rivals Ezra Pound's justly famous, loosely translated version, The River Merchant's Wife. These renderings have a limpidity of the language and metaphor and a subtle rhythm, and Qiu has a poet's sixth sense for when (occasionally) to lift the line with a less direct and more evocative word; we are thus rescued from the flatness of some translations of early Chinese poetry. This is a generous book and a very welcome addition to the poetry of love and longing from our Significant Stranger, the Chinese nation. --Mona Van Duyn.
